

Civilians continue to be severely affected by ongoing armed conflict in Kachin and Shan states. This includes over 60,000 who were temporarily displaced by conflict in 24 different townships between January 2017 and May 2018. In most cases this was short term displacement, with people returning to their places of origin within weeks or months. The UN estimates that there are now about 103,000 displaced people in camps and settlements in Kachin and northern Shan as a result of the armed conflict that resumed in 2011. Displaced people often have difficulty getting the humanitarian protection and assistance they need due to insecurity and restricted humanitarian access.

PEOPLE TEMPORARILY DISPLACED 2017 - 18

 60,000 people temporarily displaced by conflict from Jan 2017 to May 2018

(most subsequently returned to places of origin)

people who fled homes temporarily by State by year (in thousands)

■ 2018 (Jan - May)
■ 2017 (Jan - Dec)

TOTAL NUMBER OF IDPs IN CAMPS/SETTLEMENTS (UN estimates)

 103,000 IDPs in camps and settlements in Kachin/Shan*

* UN estimates include IDPs both in Government-controlled areas and areas controlled by armed groups or contested areas.

● People newly displaced in 2018 (by month)
● People newly displaced in 2017 (by month)

people displaced (in thousands)

