Description:
Due to the torrential rain caused by the DOKSURI typhoon, there occurs a sudden rise of Myithar river water level in the Kale basin starting from 17 September (448 cm below danger level). It reached the danger level on 18th September evening and continued to rise 212 cm (nearly 7 feet) above danger level at 21st September 2017.

Date: Above-Critical Level (cm)
17-Sep  -448 cm
18-Sep  -195 cm
19-Sep   96 cm
20-Sep  +130 cm
21-Sep  +212 cm

This map shows areas which appear to be flood inundated in satellite images alongside the seasonal water, paddy field, lake, rivers and other wet lands. This flooding pictured here has not been validated by field observation.

Map ID: MMU1511s01
Production Date: 21 August 2017 A1
Projection/Datum: Geographic/WGS84

Data Sources:
Satellite Image: Sentinel 1A, 2017
Copyright © Copernicus
Contains modified Copernicus Sentinel data 2017

This notice cannot be modified or removed.

Disclaimer: The names shown and the boundaries used on this map do not imply official endorsement or acceptance by the United Nations.