

MYANMAR

Ongoing armed clashes in northwestern Myanmar, including reports of airstrikes, artillery shelling, and raids, continue to affect Chin, Magway, Mandalay, and Sagaing. Since 10 March, intensified fighting in Mandalay Region has reportedly displaced thousands in Madaya and Thabeikkyin townships, compounding existing humanitarian needs. Due to the fluidity of the situation, exact figures remain unconfirmed. In early March, humanitarian partners provided food assistance to over 1,600 displaced individuals in Mandalay and Sagaing regions. Despite continued efforts, ongoing hostilities present significant challenges to safely accessing and supporting affected communities.¹

INDONESIA

Between 11 and 17 March, 16 flooding events were reported across eight provinces in Indonesia—West Java, Central Java, East Java, Aceh, Riau, South Sumatra, North Sumatra, and Central Sulawesi, affecting approximately 11,700 households or 53,800 people. In Bireuen District, Aceh, one person lost their life, and another remains missing following a flash flood on 11 March. Localized whirlwinds and extreme weather events were reported in West Java, Bangka Belitung, Central Sulawesi, and Central Java, resulting in damage to at least 500 houses, as well as several places of worship and schools.

Local authorities are leading the response with support from provincial and national governments, national non-governmental organizations and Indonesian Red Cross.²
