Responsibilities (but not limited to):

- Conduct door-to-door or on-site surveys, interviews, and observations using approved tools (paper or digital).
- Collect data from various sources such as healthcare centers, households, businesses, or public spaces, based on project requirements.
- Ensure all collected data is accurate, complete, and handled with strict confidentiality.
- Report daily progress, challenges, and field updates to the direct supervisor.
- Follow established data collection protocols and ethical guidelines at all times
- Build trust and rapport with respondents to encourage honest and cooperative participation.
- Travel to assigned field locations, including remote or hard-to-reach areas, as needed.
- Support pre-testing of questionnaires and provide feedback on field conditions and tool effectiveness.
- Upload or submit collected data promptly in accordance with project timelines.
- Perform other tasks assigned by direct supervisor.

Qualifications/Requirements:

- Bachelor's degree in any disciplines (Preferred to have professional diploma or certificate in Public Health, Social Science, Statistics or any other related background.)
- Prior experience in field data collection, survey work, public outreach or a related field.
- Proficient in using smartphones, tablets, and GPS devices for data collection.
